Detailed Action

In response to the amendment filed on 01/05/2010, claims 1-8 are pending. This office action is Final.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-8 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kato (US 5,808,224) in view of Kuramochi et al. (US 7,328,272) and further in view of Ogawa et al. (US 5,906,494).

Regarding claims 1, 5 and 6, Kato discloses a portable downloader connectable to karaoke player comprising an RF receiver for receiving voice signal and key data signal transmitted (See claim 3) via a receiving antenna; a demodulator for demodulating the signal applied thereto from the RF signal (See Abstract and P.7, 5-22, Col.12, 5-28); a waveform shaping unit (e.g. modulator)(See fig.2, element 36); a receiver connected to an external computing device having a computing function and a sound processing function, the receiver controlling the internal operation of the RF karaoke data signal receiving pack while transmitting the digital voice signal and key data signal (See Col.7, 35-50); an optical disk for storing a karaoke system operating program executed and read by the external computing device, song data and background image data(See Col.1, 54-Col.2, 2 and Col.12, 5-28).

Kato does not specifically disclose an A/D converter for converting the voice signal into the digital signal, a serial communication interface and an extension pack in which additional songs are recorded, the extension being connected to an extension pack slot to transmit data. However, Kuramochi teaches an apparatus and method for adding music content to visual content wherein the interface could be a variety of MIDI interfaces including a serial interface (See Col.9, 23-35). Kuramochi also discloses A/D converter (See Col.11, 4-30) and external storage device (See Fig. 2, element 7) and microphone for modulating generated signals (See figure 3, and Col.11, 4-31). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the system of Kato to incorporate the features of Kuramochi's invention in order to design a system with more universal features, enhanced capabilities and data processing features.

Kato/Kuramochi do not specifically disclose an audio/key data separator. However, Ogawa discloses a training apparatus for singing wherein model vocal extractor separates demodulated vocal and data signals (See Fig.1, element 30 and Col.4, 34-53). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Kato/Kuramochi to include the signal separator as disclosed by Ogawa in order to create the desired music effects.

With respect to claims 2-4, Kuramochi further disclose wherein serial communication interface transmits or receives signals in a wired/wireless manner (See Col.9, 36-67) and wherein the external computing device comprises a game apparatus or a personal computer (See Col.10, 8-20).

Regarding claims 7 and 8, Kuramochi discloses USB interface and DVD-ROM (See Col.9, 23-35 and 53-64).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed on 04/05/2010 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The applicant argues that the prior art of record, Kato, does not disclose a waveform shaping unit for shaping the waveform of the key data signal. The Examiner respectfully disagrees. Examiner has included the correct citation in the rejection of claim 1. Furthermore, figure 2 of Kato reference discloses a modulator which modulates the waveform to reduce the DC component (See Col.2, 1-35).

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
